

Gerhard Seebacher
Managing Director, Head of Global Credit Products

Gerhard Seebacher is Managing Director and head of Global Credit Products at Bank of America Merrill Lynch.

As head of Global Credit Products, Seebacher leads one of the main divisions within Global Markets, the company's institutional sales and trading platform. He is responsible for all credit trading and sales functions globally, including operations in New York, London, Hong Kong and Tokyo. The clients of Global Credit Products include corporations, middle market companies, institutional investors and government entities.

Prior to this role, Seebacher served as head of Global Rates, Foreign Exchange and Commodities for Bank of America. He also co-chaired the Global Markets trading committee.

Gerhard Seebacher joined Bank of America in 1995 in London as part of the NationsBank-CRT derivatives business. He re-located to New York in 2001. Gerhard serves on the board of directors for the International Swaps and Derivatives Association (ISDA) where he co-chairs the regulatory reform committee and serves at Operational Management Group (OMG).

Gerhard Seebacher is an Austrian citizen with a graduate degree from the University of Economics and Business Administration, Vienna. He is married with three children and lives in Greenwich, CT where he serves as a Trustee on the Board of the Whitby Montessori School.